MESSAGE

Mabuhay!

I would like to extend my congratulations to the Graduates. To the teachers, my respect and admiration for painstakingly devoted your time. To the proud parents, this is your moment to reap and enjoy the fruit of all your hardships and sacrifices to make your sons and daughters what they are today. And most of all, we thank God for He made all possible for us.

Life has never been easy, but you make it bearable because of your dream to reach your goals in your life. Some may not be able to provide you with everything but, it did not deter you to strive hard.

Graduation is one of those steps in life that defines a coming of age--the ending of one era of life, as a student or the one being shown the ropes, and moving on to a new stage in which you are a leader, a doer and an achiever in the wider world. I am sure many of you have firm plans and have a good idea of what's coming next. Well, the coming times will be exciting. They will be trying but they will be all dependent on you and your determination.

Whatever rewards you seek, I wish you the best of times and the best of life. I send you forth with the hope and desire that you continue to strive for excellence in everything you do, that you live full and meaningful lives, that your contributions to society are productive and, above all, that you are true to yourselves and your potential.

To the parents and teachers, you have given them education which you believe, and in fact it really is the only thing that you can pass to them that no one can dare to steal. Now that your young is facing a new chapter, never leave them on their own for this is one of the phases in their lives that they will need you most. Keep on believing in them that they will succeed and they really will.

To all the Graduates again, you were once a dreamer but now you are an achiever. Keep dreaming like you will live forever. Keep believing in yourself and in the powers of prayers. Do what you think can bring you success but always have your heart and mind with you in all circumstances.

Congratulations!
